WEATHER FORECAST.

UTAH—Partly cloudy and possibly unsettled Sunday and Monday.

CHICAGOANS BUY GOLF GROUNDS.

The highest ground between the Rockies (including the Black Hills) and the Alleghenies has become the prize of Chicagoans, the highest summit of the Ozarks at Windsor Park, Ark., and promptly has been appropriated to the uses of golf. Already a colony of families from Chicago, St. Louis and Fort Smith have built summer homes there, where they have a cross-country view of twenty to one hundred miles, according to atmospheric conditions. The credit for the discovery goes to Frank Coates, a wealthy lumber dealer of Chicago, who in buying standing timber found that one summit with an altitude of 2,600 feet above the sea, was higher than any other point in the Ozark mountains. He promptly seized upon the fact to establish a nucleus of a settlement, which bids fair to rival in character that in the vicinity of Asheville, North Carolina, where the millionaire estates of Biltmore, Arden, Skyland and Resthaven are located. Being western in location, it will be western also in being less exclusively exclusive than those about Asheville and more like those in the Berkshires hills of Massachusetts, where President Taft spends his summers. Nature equipped that particular locality with all the modern requirements of summering places including natural mineral springs, and men have done the rest. Some $35,000 has been expended on golf grounds, club house and other things, while all the region roundabout is unsophisticated Ozark country and people. Conveniences de luxe, housed, however, in rustic style, have appeared in the heart of a region where a porcelain bath tub is an unknown luxury, and where the hunter encountered the language and customs of the typical "hillbilly." Surrounding this summit Mr. Coates and his business associates own an empire of virgin timber, but the panorama of it goes to every recruit to the colony of Windsor park. Mrs. W. J. Echols of Fort Smith, said to be the wealthiest woman of Arkansas, and Charles B. Eads and Joseph Reynolds and other Fort Smith people and Mr. Coates and Joseph Cummings of Chicago are among the first to put the landscape to their use.

STOCKMEN LOSE BY CAR SHORTAGE.

Simultaneous movements of cattle from Wyoming and western Colorado have resulted in a shortage of cars that is proving extremely embarrassing to the railroads which have contracted to deliver these shipments to eastern points. The scarcity is so serious that many cattlemen in the western part of Colorado are likely to suffer loss unless they can manage to withhold their shipments for ten days or two weeks.

The drought and recent forest fires in Wyoming have reduced the cattle in that section almost to the point of starvation, and the railroads are inclined to favor the raisers of Wyoming to the disadvantage of the Colorado men in the interests of humanity. Routt county men had already arranged to move their stock and thousands of them have been gathered at shipping points.

They fear great loss unless the railroads handle their cattle promptly, and are inclined to resent the disposition to favor the Wyoming men.

ANOTHER INSURGENT TRIUMPH.

The Regulars of the Republican party are explaining the extent of the good legislation passed by the last congress and they are taking unto themselves all the glory.

Any one who followed the debates in the last congress knows that whatever of favorable legislation was enacted was due to the persistent efforts of the Insurgent senators. They were many measures, ostensibly intended as remedial legislation for weaknesses in the laws on railroad control and rate regulation and other subjects, which contained jokers and other vicious provisions intended to make inoperative the very remedies proposed in case they passed and became law, and nearly all these subterfuges and trick provisions were detected, pointed out and eliminated through the persistent efforts of the Insurgents.

On two or three of the more important bills the fight was won by the Insurgents only after the most vigorous campaign of publicity and watchfulness.

The railroad measures, for instance, as originally offered by the Regulars, were nothing more than a pro-railroad movement, by which the old laws were to be repealed or nullified by addenda and new laws placed on the federal statutes so as to wipe out all the rulings and final decisions of the courts which, as precedent, were just beginning to make the old legislation operative and effective.

Hundreds of cases, under the old law, had been contested in the courts for years and finally passed on in the court of last resort. To wipe out the results of all that litigation and supplant the law as interpreted by even more drastic anti-railroad legislation to be carried into the courts and held there for another period of years before being enforced or recognized as law, was but serving the purposes of the big railroad corporations, and that was the purpose and design of the Regulars, until they were exposed by the Insurgents and shame-facedly made to retreat from their untenable position.

FOR THE GOOD OF THE CLERKS.

No one denies that the hours of labor for clerks on Saturdays, when the stores close at 9 or 10 o'clock, are too long and that something should be done to relieve the faithful employees from the long grind of serving customers from early morning until late at night, but at present the proposition of continuing to close at 7 p. m. as a measure of relief, seems to be impossible, or at least to be a source of peril to the future of business in Ogden, for Salt Lake merchants have receded from the position they took some time ago in favor of early closing and are again back to the old hours.

With Salt Lake houses open Saturday night and bidding for Ogden trade, Ogden merchants, through self-preservation, are driven to the unpleasant situation of being forced to follow Salt Lake's lead.

It has been suggested that the clerks be given a Saturday rest period in the middle of the day, in the larger establishments half the employees taking an hour or two off while the other half await their return to enjoy a midday lounge at home. Some such arrangement would break the strain of the long hours and prove conducive to a quiet hour or so of real rest.

ROOMS FOR VISITORS.

The hotels of the city are filling up with strangers and there is a demand for rooms. This condition will continue until fair week hundreds of rooms will be needed to house the visitors.

In anticipation of a great influx of outsiders, Dan Ensign, of the Arlington, has been placed in charge of an information bureau where visitors are to be directed and Mr. Ensign is now calling on the home people to list with him all rooms that are for rent, so that he may be in a position to provide all who call with a comfortable room at a reasonable price.

Those who have rooms to rent during fair week should list the rooms without delay, stating the location of the houses and the price to be paid.

This is important as the proper care of our visitors is one of the essentials of a successful fair.

PLACING STRESS ON TARIFF.

Why does a man of the pre-eminence of Secretary of Agriculture Wilson persist in such rot, on the necessity of high tariff, as in this statement of his made in Kenton, Ohio, yesterday:

"A revision of the tariff has lost no man his job; no panic has followed. A further reduction of the tariffs generally would hit the working people first. Europe has lower wages than the United States and would promptly take advantage of lower duties. The farmer would lose his customers and prices of both factory and farm goods would come down."

Secretary Wilson knows that the American manufacturers have undersold, and can undersell, the foreigners in their own markets, regardless of the small difference in the scale of wages. This country is exporting billions of dollars of manufactured goods every decade, and could double its exportations, if an organized campaign for the close study of foreign markets were inaugurated.

American machinery and efficiency, combined with unequalled natural resources, of late years, has made this country industrially capable of meeting the competition of the world, and it is outrageously belittling for men like Secretary Wilson to be constantly indulging in this political buncombe of America's inability to resist the brain and brawn of foreign lands without an artificial, arbitrary barrier of huge proportions provided by law.

The Progressives, within the Republican party, recognize that the infant industries of the United States, protected for half a century, have grown to be lusty fellows and no longer require an excessively high protective tariff in combination with the powerful assistance of the American trusts.

AN OUTSIDE VIEW OF SUTHERLAND.

"Just as Wetmore is a Man Friday for Aldrich, so is Sutherland for Smoot," says Collier's in its issue of September 15. "Sutherland is docile."

Of course Sutherland is docile. He never was anything else and by virtue of that spineless characteristic, he has crawled obediently to his present position as a United States senator. Had he been a man, standing erect and having views of his own and giving expression to them he never would have been more than nature intended him to be—a shriveled-up iceberg floating along unnoticed in the ocean of humanity.

PITIALE CASE BEFORE POLICE

Deaf, Dumb and Demented Aged Woman Again Taken in Custody.

The elderly lady who was found on the bench some time ago in an apparently demented condition, and who appeared to be both deaf and dumb, was again in the hands of the police last night.

The aged woman boarded a trolley car and rode from end to end of the line and refused to get off or pay her fare. She also was found peering into the windows of homes on the hill.

This case is a pathetic one. The old lady, her hair streaked with gray, and evidently three score years of age, suffers from relapses of a weakened intellect, and when in this condition wanders away from her home and acts in quite an irrational manner. Being deaf and dumb, she has considerable difficulty in being returned to her home, and usually winds up at the police station.

Officers last night tried to communicate with her by writing questions, but her replies were incoherent. "I suffered habitually from constipation, Dean's Regulate relieved and strengthened the bowels, so that they have been regular ever since,"—A. E. Davis, grocer, Sulphur Springs, Tex.

RAPID INCREASE OF REAL ESTATE VALUES

Hunter and Kennedy, the real estate dealers of Ogden, yesterday told of a remarkable case of a small fortune being realized recently from the purchase of an acre of sage brush on the sand ridge southwest of Ogden. The ground was bought in 1891 at the rate of $30 per acre, and the purchaser set it out in fruit trees at a cost of $25 an acre.

When the land was sold recently it brought $6,200, or $620 an acre, more than 1000 per cent increase in value in nine years.

Nine years of steady increase in land value, and a little labor in the setting out of young trees, with the upkeep of the small orchard, represented this remarkable increase and profit.

Surely Utah land is worth purchasing. This is but one instance where big money has been made off of small tracts of land in this vicinity, and there are dozens of others.

There is no investment that will realize more than the purchase of orchard land in this state.

FOLLOW ROUTE OF NAPOLEON

Aeroplanes to Fly Over the Simpleon Pass to Milan.

BRIG, Switzerland, Sept. 17.—Everything is in readiness for the great cross-Alps aeroplane flight from Brig, at the head of the Rhine valley in Switzerland, over the Simpleon pass and down into Italy, crossing Lake Maggiore to Milan.

The route follows the road built by Napoleon in 1800, over the Simpleon pass, which is 6,258 feet high at the summit. The country is broken and very difficult. There are many chasms, notably the Gorge of Yvette. A captive balloon at a height of 6,500 feet will mark the aerodrome at Milan, which is about 75 miles as the crow flies from the starting point.

YOUNG SCHOOL BOY STABS COMPANION

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 17.—Lester High, a school boy, 17 years of age, stabbed to death Clarence Davidson and probably fatally wounded John Valle in a street fight here tonight.

Davidson formerly was a sweetheart of High's sister. Her father forbade him to come to her home. After that, according to the elder High, Davidson and Valle nagged the young brother of the girl continually.

After the stabbing young High went to his home and retired without saying anything about the trouble to his relatives. He was apparently asleep when officers arrested him.

"They tried to get me," was his only explanation.

GOOD SYSTEM AND GOOD TEACHERS

The Ogden Business College has adopted Stillwell's Bookkeeping and Gregg Shorthand in both day and night school. These systems, taught by the best of instructors, are giving good results. As evidence of the popularity of the school our enrollment is rapidly increasing. If you are interested in education, why not investigate? We honestly believe that we have a good school, and would like to prove it to you.
